EDMONTON BULLETIN, NOV. 7, 1891.

THE ELECTIONS.

The members of the late Northwest assembly during its last two sessions were divided into two distinct parties, the line being drawn in regard to the control of the finances. The party of the majority held that the assembly should have responsible control of all finances, while the party of the minority held that that control was vested in the lieutenant-governor and his four chosen advisers, without regard to the wishes of the assembly. It is not necessary to recount the arguments used on each side or to state the means employed by each party to enforce their views. The minority had the celebrated nine points of the law and the assembly ceased to exist leaving them still holding the fort. During the session of 1889 the parties stood 13 to 8, and in that of 1890, 15 to 6. What the Ottawa government thought of the right of the respective parties may be judged by the fact that the Northwest act was at last session of parliament amended to meet to a great degree the views of the majority, and what the people of the Northwest thought and think may be judged by the fact that of the original party of thirteen who contended for financial control seven have been elected by acclamation, while of the six who fought against that control only one has been so elected, and his election was due rather to the fact that his constituency was cut to suit him and that the electors were taken by surprise than to the popular approval of his policy. Judging from the results so far there is every reason to suppose that the new assembly is safe to have a good majority of members who can be depended upon to stand up for and secure responsible as against irresponsible control, and indeed that no one will be hardy or foolish enough to advocate such a method of government in this free country.

AN INTERVIEW.

A deputation of citizens including Messrs. J. Cameron, J. Norris, J. A. McDougall, H. S. Young, P. Daly, C. F. Strang, N. D. Beck, A. D. Osborne and F. Oliver waited on Senator Girard at Geo. Roy's residence on Wednesday afternoon last to express thanks for the action taken by the Senator at the late session of parliament in introducing the question of the location of the proposed Edmonton registry, land and timber offices. Lieutenant governor Royal and Judge Rouleau were also present.

J. Cameron, president of the board of trade, said that the deputation had come to thank Senator Girard for the lively interest which he had manifested in the welfare of Edmonton and his kindness in taking the part of the pioneers of this part of the country during the late session of parliament. The people of Edmonton felt that that they had a friend in parliament who was able and willing to work in their interests and they desired to publicly acknowledge the obligation.

Senator Girard replied that he had come to Edmonton on a visit to near and dear relatives, and did not expect to meet with any public recognition of his public actions. He had been a resident of Manitoba since 1870, and had always taken an interest in the whole Northwest. Indeed he had been officially connected with the Northwest in the early days having been the senior member of the first Northwest council; and took part in framing the first local legislation of the Northwest. To that work he brought perhaps not much capacity but a very good will, and where there was a will there was always a way. Even after the Northwest came to be represented at Ottawa, he still took an active interest in its affairs. He naturally took a special interest in Edmonton through its being the residence of his relations Mr. and Mrs. Roy. He had taken a certain interest in the matter of the public buildings here. He was informed that uneasiness existed regarding the location. Uneasiness hindered progress, therefore took action to allay that uneasiness. He understood from the premier that the buildings would be erected on the north side. He thought the Edmonton country one of the finest spots in the whole of Canada. After passing over the prairies, on nearing Edmonton he felt as though he were nearing home. All might be assured that as long as he was able to occupy his seat in the senate he would be ready to speak a word not only for Manitoba but also for the Northwest. There was much to do, but he would be glad to have a share in what was to be done. He would be glad to be asked for assistance and would always take an interest in the welfare and happiness of the people of Edmonton.

In the course of private conversation regarding the construction of a traffic bridge. Senator Girard suggested that statistics be prepared showing the amount of traffic and the necessity that existed for a bridge, which he would be glad to place before the government. It appeared that there was a general impression that the cost of a traffic bridge, would run up into hundreds of thousands, whereas an offer had been made by a responsible and competent bridge builder to construct a substantial bridge for $50,000.

Judge Rouleau stated that he proposed to press upon the government the necessity of providing court house accommodation, and that he would suggest a court room and judges' chambers in the new police barracks that would probably be erected.

G. A. Watson vs. P. Heiminek—Defendant moved to commit plaintiff for contempt in not attending to be examined before the deputy clerk. The contempt was dropped by the defendant and the question of costs was reserved. S. S. Taylor, for plaintiff. N. D. Beck, for defendant.

Criminal cases:
Judge Rouleau presiding.
Monday, Nov. 2.
The Queen vs. W. Stephens. The charge contained three counts. Wounding; inflicting grievous bodily harm; and assault occasioning actual bodily harm. The complainant was W. Inkster. The case was tried before the judge only, who rendered a verdict of guilty on the first count, and sentenced the prisoner to one month's confinement without hard labor. N. D. Beck, for the crown. S. S. Taylor, for the prisoner.

Tuesday, Nov. 3.
Appeal by W. Brunelle from a conviction for selling liquor without a permit, made by W. Piercy. The appeal was dismissed by the judge, with costs. N. D. Beck, for the crown. A. Prince, per J. C. Bown, for Brunelle.

The Queen vs. Graham. The charge contained three counts. Maliciously injuring a horse belonging to H. Fraser, and maliciously injuring two horses belonging to Jas. Rowland. Trial before the judge only. Verdict, guilty on the first count and not guilty on the other two. Sentence, 4 months imprisonment at hard labor. N. D. Beck, for the crown. P. J. Nolan, Calgary, for the prisoner.

Thursday.
Queen vs. Napasis—The prisoner is an Indian of the Stoney Plain reserve, and was accused of perjury by corruptly and falsely taking a false oath on the trial of the recent liquor cases at the police court at Edmonton. He pleaded not guilty and asked for a jury. The verdict was not guilty. N. D. Beck, for the crown. J. F. C. Bown, for the prisoner.

Civil cases.
Wednesday.
E. Brosseau vs. P. Ouellette—This was an action for balance of account and for the further sum of $166, being an amount of interest paid by plaintiff who was the endorser on defendant's note of $600, which had been discounted at Lafferty & Moore's. Defendant contested that the note was an accommodation only and also that plaintiff agreed to pay the interest. Plaintiff denied such and offered evidence to prove that defendant actually collected the interest as damages in a suit against the government, and kept same.

The case occupied the attention of the court for two days. Judgment was reserved. S. S. Taylor, for plaintiff. Geo. A. Watson, for defendant.

Frederick Rowland vs. J. F. Smith—This was an action for amount of account being $30.60. Defendant put in a counter claim. Counter claim was withdrawn. Judgment for plaintiff for full amount of claim and costs. S. S. Taylor, for plaintiff. C. L. Shaw, for defendant.

The Singer Manufacturing Co. vs. John Whitson—Upon motion of plaintiff case was postponed to next court. S. S. Taylor, for plaintiff. N. D. Beck, for defendant.

The same vs. R. W. Hare—Same motion was made with same result. S. S. Taylor, for plaintiff. N. D. Beck, for defendant.
